Effective Organisational Leadership

Strategic, Tactical and Operational Leadership for Organisational Success

Training Course Overview

What levels of Leadership are needed in an organisation? How are these defined? Why is it so important to get this right?

Leadership is required at all levels in an organisation, and these levels can be defined as Strategic, Operational and Tactical Leadership. Successful organizations understand the Leadership system and the power this understanding brings. It can avoid duplication of effort and confusion and provides the Vision, Understanding, Clarity, and Adaptability (VUCA) to lead in the modern world.

This highly interactive and engaging COPEX training course will demonstrate your leadership preference level, as well as provide a complete, holistic view of Organizational Leadership, and how the three levels interact and complement each other. The skills and knowledge gained on the course are essential for leading, as well as achieving, organizational success and sustainability in the modern world.
